Why program review
• Accreditation requirement
• Reflect on what you have done
• Plan for future
• Contribute to College Strategic Planning
Program Review process:

- Preparation: Each group is assigned to an IEC support team or orientation.

- Document Development: Each program works collaboratively to draft program review submission.

- Document Submission: Final document along with the summaries is completed and submitted to the President's council and board.

- IEC Committee discussion: After each committee member reviews each submission, the support team facilitates the IEC review discussion. The comments are then summarized.

- Program rep discussion: After being given the discussion summary ahead of time, the program reps attend an in-person meeting to discuss the questions, comments, and recommendations.

- Revisions: Program revises draft and re-submits to IEC.

- Summary: A summary of the review is developed by each team.

- Summary
Recommended Development Strategy

- Inform your program members that you are beginning the process
- Solicit input from program members on the individual items
- Develop draft
- Have program members review draft
- Revise document as needed
- Submit to supervisor for review
- Complete final draft for IEC submission

Tips

- Provide support documentation and data for your assertions, e.g., we “provide excellent tutoring service to our students”, as evidenced by survey results or by a study examining the effects of tutoring on student success.
- Particularly with requesting new resources or staff provide documentation, i.e. what has been the historical level of service with or without the resources. For example, we have only been able to offer 4 sections at night for the past 3 years.
- If you are identifying needs or plans in the Program Review document, there should be a corresponding Unit Plan and/or Budget request.
