While this process might be more time-consuming, it will ultimately mean of more responsive and valid program plan that will better serve the mission of the college. After collecting this input, a plan can be drafted and then again shared with the various members of the program for revision. Moreover, other faculty and administrators should be given an opportunity to provide input into a plan. Additionally, student input might be valuable as well. Lastly, members of a community advisory board might also provide important information.

In preparation for writing the plan, sources of information include school enrollment, success, or community need data. In order to develop a Program Plan that represents the needs and strengths of your program, it is important to collect and review information.

Program Development Instructions

- Continue to Program Plan
- Create/View Program Plan
- Step 4: Create/View Program Plan
- Step 3: Select the Academic Year of your Program Plan
- Step 2: Select Department
- Step 1: Select Division
- Create/View Program Plans submitted for Academic Year 2010/2011 and later

Welcome to the Program Plan (formerly called Unit Plan) website.
Tell us what you think about the Program Plan Form

- Student Program Learning Outcomes
- Institutional Effectiveness Committee (IEC)
- View Unit Plans Submitted before AY 2010-2011

Additional Resources

- Institutional Planning Cycle
- Budget Ranking Matrix
- Program Plan Sample
- Program Plan Deadlines

Download All Program Plans
(with or without Budget Requests)

Download Program Plans
(without Budget Requests only)

View Budget Rankings Online

View Program Plans and Budget Requests

https://www.leyland.edu/program-plans/index.php

Please send comments or questions to mmt@leyland.edu

Address of this page is https://www.leyland.edu/index.php

Last updated on March 14, 2012