CONTENT, STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES, OUT-OF-CLASS ASSIGNMENTS
Curriculum Approval Date: 10/10/2016

3 hours

CONTENT: Students get an overview of the course. They discuss the role of the text and of the reader in the reading process. Students learn the distinction between topic, topic sentence, main idea, and summary. Students review the use of an English-English dictionary. Students are introduced to the literature piece(s) that they will read, analyze, and discuss in addition to the readings in the main textbook.

HOMEWORK: Students complete a dictionary worksheet and begin work on the textbook.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: To review the components in the textbook(s), to begin to differentiate between topic, topic sentence, main idea, and summary, and to begin work with correct dictionary use.

CONTENT: Students read and work through three units or chapters in their textbook using a cycle that consists of the following steps: preview of the reading(s) to activate prior knowledge, enable better comprehension, and stimulate interest; read the selection quickly without a dictionary; read the selection again more slowly to understand main ideas; scan the reading to get specific pieces of information; analyze the reading for context clues to aid in the comprehension of unfamiliar vocabulary; complete reading comprehension exercises; distinguish between main ideas and supporting ideas; organize the information using an outline, if appropriate; identify and compare parts of speech and affixes; and react in writing and orally in class discussion to the viewpoint(s) expressed in the readings.

HOMEWORK:
Students read the assigned textbook selections and work through a variety of exercises for reading and vocabulary comprehension. Students begin work on the chosen piece of literature.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: To anticipate information in a reading for context clues to aid in the comprehension of unfamiliar vocabulary; complete reading comprehension exercises; distinguish between main ideas and supporting ideas; organize the information using an outline, if appropriate; identify and compare parts of speech and affixes; and react in writing and orally in class discussion to the viewpoint(s) expressed in the readings.

CONTENT: Students read and work through three units or chapters in their textbook using the cycle noted above and add the following elements: choose the correct dictionary definition for a word used in a particular context; recognize and correctly use other prefixes and suffixes; identify adjective and noun phrases (fried potatoes, red potatoes) and compound words (bookstore); understand idioms (help out, out of this world); and make inferences.

HOMEWORK: Students read the assigned textbook selections and work through a variety of exercises for reading and vocabulary comprehension. Students continue reading the assigned literary piece.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: To anticipate information in a reading and activate prior knowledge; to use the context to identify main ideas and details, the connection between ideas in a paragraph, and figure out unfamiliar vocabulary; to show comprehension of main ideas; to make inferences based on the reading to deepen the comprehension of the material; to organize the information in an outline and use it to formulate a summary; to use a dictionary to identify the best match for a word used in a particular context; to identify and compare parts of speech and groups of prefixes and suffixes; and to recognize idioms and the varied ways in which they are used.

CONTENT: Students read and work through three units or chapters in their textbook using the cycle noted above and add the following elements: recognize and correctly use other prefixes and suffixes; recognize word roots (psych, dict); distinguish facts from opinions; and continue applying inference.

HOMEWORK: Students read the assigned textbook selections and work through a variety of exercises for reading and vocabulary comprehension. Students continue reading the assigned literary piece. Students have an individual session with the instructor to determine their progress on the literature piece or complete worksheets.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: To anticipate information in a reading prior to reading and activate prior knowledge; to use the context to identify main ideas and details, the connection between ideas in a paragraph, and figure out unfamiliar vocabulary; to show comprehension of main ideas; to make inferences based on the reading to deepen the comprehension of the material; to organize the information in an outline and use it to formulate a summary; to use a dictionary to identify the best match for a word used in a particular context; to identify and compare parts of speech and groups of prefixes and suffixes; and to recognize idioms and the varied ways in which they are used.
formulate a summary; to use a dictionary to identify the best match for a word used in a particular context; to identify and compare parts of speech and groups of suffixes, prefixes, and roots; to recognize idioms and the varied ways in which they are used; to distinguish facts from opinions.

CONTENT: Students read and work through three units or chapters in their textbook using the cycle noted above and add the following elements: answer essay questions based on the information in the reading(s); take notes and organize the information using an outline to recall and summarize the information; select accurate dictionary definitions; recognize and correctly use other suffixes; correctly use prefixes and understand the meaning of common word roots; and increase reading speed.

HOMEWORK: Students read the assigned textbook selections and work through a variety of exercises for reading and vocabulary comprehension. Students continue work on their assigned literary piece and prepare for a final evaluation of the literary component.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: To anticipate information in a reading prior to reading to activate prior knowledge; to use the context to identify main ideas and details, the connection between ideas in a paragraph, and figure out unfamiliar vocabulary; to show comprehension of main ideas and make inferences to deepen this comprehension; to organize the information in an outline and use it to formulate a summary; to use a dictionary to identify the best match for a word used in a particular context; to identify and compare parts of speech and groups of suffixes, prefixes, and roots; to recognize idioms and the varied ways in which they are used; to distinguish facts from opinions; to increase reading speed through timed readings.

3 hours

CONTENT: Students review the main skills learned throughout the semester paying particular attention to the difference between main idea and details and the different and varied strategies used for the comprehension of different kinds of readings.

HOMEWORK: Students complete the final evaluation of or project for the literature piece(s) they have worked on all semester. They evaluate their progress through a written self-evaluation.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: To review all reading skills learned and practiced throughout the semester and the various context clues that can be used to aid in the comprehension of a reading; to evaluate which strategies work best for them according to their learning style and preference; and to evaluate their progress in reading and vocabulary comprehension and development.

2 hours
