Service Learning

Service Learning connects students and faculty to the community. It's used extensively at four-year colleges from Stanford to the entire CSU and UC systems. In Service Learning classes students:

- work under supervision at a partner agency in the community for 10-40 hours a semester (most Gavilan classes require 20-30 hours, and these hours replace other homework)
- reflectively relate the experience to class content.
- extend the reach, freshen the vision, and aid the work human service agencies do in the community.
