

English Instruction

Vision/Narrative

The English Department has increased student success by expanding our academic services through the Writing Center and our strong Puente program. We are promoting our new major by strengthening our literature and creative writing offerings. Through a combination of successful initiatives for first-year students, including acceleration, and supplemental instruction, we have increased success in our pre-transfer courses, with a 20% increase since 2008 (see the Gavilan College Student Success Report of Fall 2013). We would like to see the same increases in basic skills students' persistence and success at the transfer level, but we've identified some barriers to achieving this goal and consolidating our successes:

- 1) The number of part-time faculty has stayed disproportionately high in the English Department, with approximately 70% of our courses taught by adjuncts now compared to 55% in 2008. The temporary nature of PT faculty, along with the fact that they are not compensated for training and program development, restricts our ability to institute improvements in our pedagogy and course sequencing.
- 2) Data on the "leaky pipeline" indicates that we lose significant numbers of our students as they drop out or fail to climb the ladder of the developmental course sequence.

We are committed to expanding our acceleration efforts to address this problem, including the following: a) informed self-placement; b) test-prep, boot camps; c) stretch model (e.g. adding unit to Eng. 1A to provide extra support for basic skills students); d) bump-up models (teaching a course to the higher level and providing easy mechanisms for students to move up to a higher course); and e) expanding our successful accelerated courses, integrating reading and writing, and providing scaffolding while increasing the level of challenge.

To improve our program overall, we are also committed to the following: increasing the number of full-time faculty; implementing and improving our portfolio system; expanding our Writing Center and Supplemental Instruction, including services to students in our evening, online, and satellite campus programs; integrating student services with accelerated classes; collaborating with library faculty to reduce plagiarism and improve students' information competency; promoting the use of technology and other non-traditional instructional methods; developing a film major and creative writing certificate; training English and other faculty in reading and Integrating Reading and Writing (IRW) pedagogy; and expanding our service learning offerings and other cross-disciplinary collaborations, including non-credit offerings. We look forward to more shared initiatives with counselors, other programs offering supplemental instruction training, and faculty from other disciplines interested in improving students' reading and writing skills.

Factors that influence our plans are: budget constraints, lack of full-time faculty to sit on various steering committees and develop programs and implement innovative ideas, lack of time and financial resources for training and collaborative efforts, particularly with the part-time faculty.

Finally, because English classes are writing-intensive, requiring 5,000 words that must be evaluated, responding to student work is time-consuming and under-compensated. The 5,000-word requirement, which keeps our classes line with state standards, places an undue burden on English faculty. Many California Community Colleges recognize that this is work must be compensated and thus offer the writing factor. We believe this change would also help us increase student retention and success in writing courses, a critical foundation for students' success. This would help with faculty retention, as well, as we have had a loss of long time and part time faculty due to comp factor pay discrepancies. We propose instituting a differential load for writing-intensive courses, creating a campus climate that recognizes students' need for strong writing skills in pursuing their academic and career goals.

Feedback from Supervisor / Dean

Program Objective 1: Institute composition factor for writing-intensive courses

Strategy and Goal(s):

Strategy #4: Recruit and develop staff to foster success for our diverse students in their attainment of educational and/or career goals.

Goal #3: Maintain competitive salary and benefit packages to ensure the attraction and retention of the best qualified employees.

IEC Program Review:

No: Getting a student through a transfer-level class necessitates extra time and attention from the instructor, especially when it comes to students who are identified in the equity categories.

Local colleges that do offer comp factor make us less competitive and siphon away adjuncts.

Progress:

Closed: This is a new initiative and based on the need to increase student success in writing-intensive courses such as Eng. 1A and 250. Courses requiring 6,000 or more written, corrected, original words in the semester should be compensated at this rate. The cost of this initiative would need to be calculated based on the number of writing intensive courses offered each semester.

RESUBMITTED: See Academic Year 2017-18 Program Plan

Activity 1: Give 1.33 faculty credits for each unit of writing-intensive courses

Program Objective 2: Hire one full-time English teacher with a reading credential and two additional full-time faculty

Strategy and Goal(s):

Strategy #4: Recruit and develop staff to foster success for our diverse students in their attainment of educational and/or career goals.

Goal #1: Create a staffing plan to better meet student needs after assessing staffing gaps in all departments.

IEC Program Review:

Yes, this Objective is based from the last IEC Program Review.

Progress:

Closed: in spring 2014, we hired a new faculty member, Jessica Gatewood, with credentials in reading and writing. The new Title V grant will require extensive involvement of English faculty, including 100% for one instructor, and ideally we would have new FT faculty in place for planning and implementation.

Dean	This Department's courses serve as one of the two gateways for Gavilan College students, and the imbalance between full and part time instructors affects the Department's ability to offer a consistent program and to staff classes. Finding certified reading teachers is so challenging that classes sometimes must be canceled.	12

Closed: We have secured funding for Turnitin.com . We have made Turnitin usage mandatory for English 250, 1A, 1B and 1C teachers. All instructors now have Canvas shells for all their classes. We encourage them to use it, provide models and demonstrations on how to use technology in classrooms. We have provided training sessions for developing online curriculum and enhanced technology, but funding and release time continues to be a barrier. Instructors have no real incentives for including technology in their classrooms. Often they must either train themselves, or be trained by volunteers.

RESUBMITTED: See Academic Year 2017-18 Program Plan

Program Objective 9: Offer Writing Center tutoring at off-sites, and develop synchronous online academic support.

Strategy and Goal(s):

Strategy #2: Improve student services and enhance curriculum and programs in order to help students meet their educational, career, and personal goals.

Goal #1: Increase the student success, completion, and transfer rates using reasonable benchmarks specified by the College.

IEC Program Review:

No: There are major gaps that exist for our Writing Center in meeting equity goals in that we don't currently have funding nor the infra-structure to serve off-site campuses in an on-going and consistent way. Likewise, developing an on-line component of our programming has been difficult because of infra-structure and funding issues. On-line responses require specific skills and much more training.

Progress:

Closed: The Writing Center has undergone some changes under the new coordinator. We now offer supplemental instruction in more than 15 English courses, in addition to drop-in tutoring on the main campus. Additionally, we will be offering Winter Training and hiring new staff for Spring.

We hired two new instructional program specialist in Fall 2016 to provide administrative support, develop publicity, support our drop-in tutors, as well as our supplemental instruction tutors.

We are challenged to provide Writing Center services at off-sites or during evening hours due to budget constraints and lack of faculty supervision, but we are working on offering more Writing Center services in Hollister and Morgan Hill. RESUBMITTED: See Academic Year 2017-18 Program Plan

Activity 1: Expand Writing Center services by training tutors and assigning them more hours at the Morgan Hill and Hollister campuses. Increase availability of drop-in tutoring at those sites. Increase the number of classes that are served through the supplemental instruction program, especially in light of the accelerated model the English Department is currently adapting.

Develop a synchronous online essay response system to better serve evening and off-site students, offer face-to-face Writing Center tutoring at the Hollister and Morgan Hill campuses, and supplemental instruction inside off-site basic skills and accelerated classes whenever possible and requested.

Personnel Request:

30 Tutors (including drop-in and supplemental instructors) (Drop-down window would only allow Quantity of 5). This would cover all basic skills and 1A courses.
